All-Out Air Smash At Germany Urged On Allied Leaders

The British United Press has sent its foreign editor, Joe Alex Morris, to London to survey the position of the United Nations as the World War moves into its fourth year and Allied eyes turn toward the possibility of an end to defensive stunts and an opening of a second front against Germany. A dispatch by Morris reporting a growing feeling in London that the hour is near for striking back at Adolf Hitler—possibly through faster air raids than the world has ever before seen—follows—EDITOR.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
British United Press Foreign Editor

LONDON, Sept. 9.—(BUP)—The heat is on in London today for a United Nations smash at Germany—possibly through the greatest concentration of air striking power ever, hurled at one nation.

In many places it was believed today—a belief backed by the most recent statements of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill—that the date has now been fixed for the opening of the second front against Adolf Hitler.

Whatever the date of the land offensive, I have found in Britain emphatic determination to turn against Hitler at the quickest possible moment the weapon with which he once terrorized Europe—air power and air power in a concentrated striking form such as will put the Luftwaffe's biggest performances in the shade.

Attack is Wanted Quickly

There is an urgent desire in many quarters that this weapon be turned against Germany as quickly as possible so that the present opportunity is most favorable for an all-out air attack. Such an attack would require a re-

Hitler, frenziedly driving his armies to capture Stalin-grad, threw fresh masses of men and armor into the bloody assault today, but the Russians declared they were holding firmly on all sides of the imperilled Volga metropolitan.

German field headquarters asserted in broad terms that tanked Nazi troops had stormed and captured "dominating heights" in the fortified zone west of Stalin-grad after stubborn fighting.

On Stalin-grad's southern flank, the Russians shifted army mortar batteries and riflemen killed 350 Axis troops in beating off four successive assaults supported by massed planes.

PLANES ARE THICK
Soviet accounts said Axis planes were so thick they were "literally" obscuring over our front and bombing our positions," but the Russians waited them out and then charged to drive off the Stalin-grad force.

Air-ground dispatches said Nazi tanks and infantry, attacking under an umbrella of dive-bombers, deepened a narrow wedge in the city's western defenses yesterday.

"After a violent engagement, the troops retreated to the defense line," Soviet headquarters said.

Then, amid all-night fighting, the Red armies stiffened and the Russians declared they were holding firmly on all sides of the imperilled Volga metropolitan.

Month's Supply Of Sugar Can Now be Bought

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—(CP).—Revision of the sugar rationing regulations to allow consumers to buy four weeks' supply at one time was announced last night by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Simultaneously, the board announced abolition of sugar purchase vouchers for home canning after Sept. 30, and new quota systems for industrial users, public caterers and institutions.

Under the new regulations, the announcement said, each numbered coupon of the temporary ration cards represented two weeks' supply at the rate of one-half pound per person per week. The new regulations validate two sugar coupons per month and hence permit a person to buy a full month's supply in two months at one time.

VALID MONTH
Sugar coupons 1 and 2 in the new ration book, issued last Monday, Sept. 7, numbers 3 and 4 may be used on and after Oct. 5. The last one, number 3, will not be accepted before Feb. 2, 1943. The coupons continue to be valid for the purchase of sugar at any time after their valid dates. This also applies to unused coupons from the temporary ration cards.

Until the end of September, sugar may still be obtained by purchase voucher for home canning purposes, but it must not be used later than Oct. 31. The announcement also provides in plenty of time for the next rationing season.

It added: "For preserving and canning perishable fruits, the ration is one-half pound of sugar for each pound of fruit or, if the preserving of canned goods by the syrup method, the syrup used must not contain more than one part of sugar to two parts of water. Until further notice, sugar for apples may be had at the rate of one pound of sugar for eight of apples. Car apples have been issued as fresh fruit for the purpose of preserving them or making them into jelly."

TO GET QUOTAS
"For the first three months of this year the supervision of rationing will be the quota of sugar allowed to public caterers, industrial users, institutions and for ship stores. This system, more flexible than the previous 30 per cent, will allow for increasing or decreasing volume of business and for shifts of population."

"Operators of boarding houses may register in the institutional classification if they wish. Otherwise they operate in the same way as ordinary consumers, with each boarder deemed to be a person in the operator's household."

"Under order previously issued, a consumer may detach from his ration book a whole sheet or any remaining part of a sheet and leave these with the merchant from whom he regularly buys his sugar. The merchant may then detach the proper coupons as he delivers sugar on the order to his customer and in accordance with the valid dates of the coupons."

"The order states that any seller of sugar may refuse to sell to any person who he believes has contravened or is attempting to contravene any provision of the order."

CONTROL FLAMES
The crew remained aboard the ship fighting to bring the fire under control, the Navy announced, but their efforts were unsuccessful and it soon became necessary for them also to transfer to the cruiser.

Aboard that ship they waited until the intensity of the fire had decreased somewhat and then they moved to a nearby ship where they fought a fire fighting party back aboard the transport and succeeded in bringing the flames under control.

Meanwhile buses and salvage trucks had been summoned and when they arrived they began successful towing operations. They finally delivered the former Manhattan to port.

The vessel was built in 1932 and for the United States Lines by the New York Shipbuilding Company at Camden, N.J.

The Navy said that at the time of her sinking she was the largest, most modern liner built in the United States.

The Manhattan was taken over by the Navy in 1941 and renamed the Wakefield in accordance with the Navy's policy of naming transports for historic ships. In this instance the birthplace of George Washington.

U.S. Transport Badly Damaged By Fire at Sea

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP).

The naval transport Wakefield, formerly the liner Manhattan, was severely damaged by a fire at sea Sept. 3, the United States Navy announced today, but more than 1,600 passengers and crew members were removed without loss of life.

The charred hull of the 74,000-ton cargo, sea time Queen of the United States merchant fleet, has now been salvaged and towed to an Atlantic coast port, a navy statement said.

It added that preliminary reports indicate that all the passengers and crew were safe, the navy said.

The fire was described as being of "undetermined origin." It broke out on the deck level and spread rapidly throughout the 10-deck, 10,000-ton ship.

It soon became necessary to remove the more than 1,600 passengers, many of whom were civilians, the others presumably being men in the naval service, the navy related.

There were, according to the vessel's normal complement, 800 to 1,000 officers and crewmen aboard, commanded by Cmdr. Harold Gardiner, of the United States Navy, Wash., a coast guard ship.

The navy said the rescue was accomplished in a brilliant manner by warships protecting the convoy in which the Wakefield was travelling to an east coast port.

The cruiser manoeuvred its bow alongside the stricken transport and a destroyer placed itself along the side. At these close quarters the passengers were transferred rapidly from the blazing ship.

The crew remained aboard the ship fighting to bring the fire under control, the Navy announced, but their efforts were unsuccessful and it soon became necessary for them also to transfer to the cruiser.

Board Orders Salary Scale Equal to Work

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP).

The National War Labor Board has instructed regional boards to issue a policy of "equal pay for equal work" to be observed by labor department officials made known yesterday.

These instructions will result in women and junior employees who are doing skilled work being paid on a basis comparable with the pay of skilled employees receiving the higher wage rates.

"Basic wage rates, whether a range of rates or a single rate," are to be paid with respect to an occupational classification—not with respect to which classification employees in a classification," the national board's ruling says.

The instructions provide that an employer may request a war labor board to permit the establishment of a new and lower-paid occupational classification within an occupation for which classification has already been established.

"A war labor board may approve such a request, provided that the skill and ability called for is of a lower grade than that previously associated with the established classifications of the employer or where separate classifications are desirable for apprenticeship or learner's schedules, provided that the range of wage rates or single wage rates requested is a fair and reasonable measurement of the relative skills and abilities required in connection with the new and lower paid classifications."

"Procedure has been outlined in the regional boards for handling straight hourly rates or rates on a salary basis, individual or group piece rates and incentive bonus plans with a guaranteed minimum hourly rate."

Where piece rates apply the national board has ordered that the piece rate be paid by piece because of the addition, removal or altering of a work element "and then only in direct proportion to the value in time or money of the change involved."

LEARNERS' SCHEDULES
Establishment of apprenticeship, learner's schedule or lower-paid classification is permissible for the guaranteed hourly rate portion of the method of payment under a specified procedure but such new classifications must have approval of a war labor board.

Major Proctor led a group of 27 officers and men, Canada's first paratroopers, here five weeks ago for training in this school.

The paratroopers were the "guiding lights" for the first Canadian parachute battalion to be trained at Shilo, Man.

Described by O.D.T. as "a drastic move to obtain further conservation of such equipment for war purposes," the order will supplement conservation regulations already in effect.

Approximately 5,000,000 trucks, 10,000 buses, upwards of 80,000 taxicabs and similar vehicles will be required to carry a certificate of war necessity in order to obtain fuel, tires, tubes and accessories.

Canadian Bush Pilots Carrying Fight to Axis Undersea Raiders

AN EAST COAST CANA-

DIAN AIR BASE, Sept. 9.

(CP).—Rough weather

bush pilots who helped wedge open the door leading to the continent's north is today carrying the fight from this Royal Canadian Air Force station against U-boat raiding Dominion sealances.

But now things are different. We got John I. B. and Port Arthur, Ont., once noted for his cool flying over the treacherous air routes and for his canny political career, said he had his face altered by the heavy hitting bombers of the R.C.A.F. can do with brains and courage at the controls.

He thinks the air force is just about tops, though he admits a naval officer's of his almost bald head that once he thought the filers in uniform were a "bunch of tea drinking sissies."

BUILDER OF MEN

However, he says he discovered that the air force not only can fly—it's the greatest builder of men in the country.

Taking himself as an example of what life in the service can do to a man, he said, "When I was a bush pilot all I thought of was getting my load through at three cents a mile and of the bottle and the blonde that was waiting for me."

But now things are different. We got a big job to do and a great bunch of boys doing it."

He refuses to talk of his air races against death when he flew on a polar expedition and led the hunt for a group of Russian airmen stranded off Canada's New Brunswick coast. Or of the Breezy political campaigns he staged when a Port Arthur sinner.

Now he is interested only in knowing hell out of some more subs," and teaching younger fliers to do just that.

Heard his squadron is N. E. (Molly) Small of Vancouver, who is an airways pioneer who has come up to the north country and is now the life of the station.

As a commercial pilot he's stuck up to a record of more than 6,000 flying hours, those hours included service in the R.C.A.F. in the Lines and a lot of private freight flying through the north country.

AWARDED AIR CROSS

Joining the service at the outbreak of war, the government first used his skill and daring in mapping the Hudson Bay district. For this he was awarded the Air Force Cross.

Later he made a record breaking trip from Montreal to Victoria, B.C. when in the Atlantic ferry service and while with them demonstrated something that until then he believed impossible. He brought his ship, Catalina flying boat, out of a tail spin.

"He is the finest and best man I ever met," one of his officers said sincerely, and every man in the station backs that statement.

Small is ideal for the nerve wracking, exciting and dangerous job of coastal patrol, his men claim. Weather is an old story to him. Catalina flying boat, out of a tail spin.

ILSLEY REVEALS

Canada's War Expenditure For Coming Year To Total Nearly 4 Billion Dollars

MONTREAL, Sept. 9.—(CP).—Canada's financial program for the forthcoming year calls for an expenditure of nearly $4,000,000,000, Finance Minister J. L. Ilesley told a gathering of national war finance workers and representatives of the provincial government and municipal councils here yesterday.

Beginning a Quebec tour prior to the opening of Canada's third year, Mr. Ilesley told his audience that "before the war it used to frighten us to spend $1,000,000. During the coming fiscal year we will spend $3,000,000 and it is more likely to go over that amount than below it."

Mr. Ilesley outlined three plans by which this money could be raised: 1—By taxation. 2—By borrowing. 3—By using more money.

But the disclosure that it was coming, has furnished a effective prelude.

There is no intention whatever to destroy military but three methods, after all are fundamental in politics or in warfare.

The main point is that the United Nations leaders have taken the psychological warfare of the dictators. They could never have done it without the military strength to back it up and the determination to use it. That, deterrence, may have been inspired by the conviction that Russia's plight, with the added threat of Japanese attack, made it imperative that a decisive blow be struck in the west, and which was first by air-land attacks followed by invasion. But the disclosure that it was coming, has furnished a effective prelude.

Laval Protest is Rejected by U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP).

Military plans located in France and sent to the Germans "will be bombed at every opportunity," the U.S. State Department said in a reply to his protest against past American bombing of towns in occupied France.

The state department based this announcement late yesterday.

The American charge d'affaires in Vichy, S. Pinckney Tuck, was called in last night by Monsieur Laval (Vichy chief of government), who said that in the recent bombing of Havre and Rouen by combined military forces of the United Nations, a number of people were killed and others wounded and that the American government had not entered a protest to the American government since it was reported that American forces participated.

Mr. Tuck's immediate reply was that these air forces were bombing military plants in the employ of Germany, and that of course the Americans do not desire to see French people suffer any more than the Germans.

He said that the Americans have already suffered to an incalculable extent under German occupation, but that Monsieur Laval must be assured that the military plants operated by or for Germany are not to be bombed at every opportunity in the future.

How to Remind Hubby About That Birthday

One Woman Says She and Children Talk About Anniversary Weeks Ahead; Remembering the Day Preserves Romance in Marriage

Dear Dorothy Dix: You get many letters from women who feel that their marriages are failures and that their husbands do not love them because they never remember anniversary. Their husbands are good, kind, generous men who provide them with every comfort and luxury, but they never give them presents on their birthdays or their wedding days; at Mother's day and even at Christmas they always give them a check instead of buying something for them that would make it a real present.

I feel sure this is not indifference on the husband's part but just thoughtlessness. The way to prevent it is by beginning to talk about my birthday weeks ahead and setting the children to discussing it at the table so that the matter is brought to the husband's mind that he cannot forget it or ignore it. I advise other wives to try this plan.

HAPPY WIFE.

Answer: No doubt this plan will work. The experience of millions of wives goes to show that the average man can be nagged into doing practically anything. But what prevents that a husband has any sentimental significance to the wife is a mystery that lies hidden in the unexplained depths of feminine psychology.

Nobody can explain it, or can anyone expect to. The way to prevent that a husband has any sentimental significance to the wife is a mystery that lies hidden in the unexplained depths of feminine psychology.

Check on their wedding day.

Gifts don't suffice, even though it is written in three figures. It must be some article that he is presumed to have picked out himself, even though it isn't in the least what Maria wants and she returns it the next day and gets the thing she is hankering after and that was what she had bought in the first place on her charge account.

As a practical-minded business man, harassed by many details, it is not unreasonable that he should have to add to his other worries by stopping at the florist and buying a bunch of flowers because it is an anniversary when all his wife has for an anniversary present would be surprised to know how often it turns into a fur coat.

Curious creatures, wives.

Chart Helps You to Learn Typing

Bad Typist Loses in Business

But, rub, rub! She'll soon rub out her job if she doesn't learn the "Q" when she wants "Q". Time, money and jobs are lost regularly by girls who don't know the accurate touch-typing system, the "Q" when she wants "Q".

Learning at home.

At home the one in our sketch shows you just how to place your fingers on the keyboard and what each finger should strike.

The eight dark keys, or "home keys," are where your right fingers rest when not typing. When one finger moves to strike another key, the others stay "home."

Trouble: then the typing finger quickly returns to its base.

In addition, the keyboard is divided into sections, one to each finger. You must learn to type "Q" and "M" can never jump out of its section to "E" or "N".

That's how mistakes are prevented. Our 20-page instruction book includes chart, diagram of typewriter and daily drills. Also describes good usage in typing English, how to type social, official and business letters, statistics. Helps as an aid for a business college course.

Send five coins for your copy of "Teach Yourself Touch Typing" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, 90 Front St., Toronto. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

SPORTING BLOOD

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

THE STORY: Struckdown Ballard, pompous, paternalistic medicine king, the political action prize hunter and a new strain of owner from Hunter Dent, the club manager, Hunter beta his next year's salary that he will take the year and his wife-loving employer will secure his house and car, and spend money. He reports the bet before Ballard's daughter, Bella. Late that night Hunter finds Ballard's daughter, Junior, lying on the floor of his room. Beside him is a suitcase containing $7,000.

CHAPTER II
HUNTER DENT dazedly counted the sum of money again, and replaced the large denominations in the leather bag. A goldfish

"You know, mysteries always charm and challenge me," Bella said. "I'll wager you that if I had a clew I could solve this deep, dark mystery."

monogram, almost obliterated by use, was of the First National Bank, Middleton. The Ballard Laboratories had their account in this bank. It was possible the money was Mr. Ballard's. Hunter went and looked down at the boy. He was breathing with a sagging nose and seemed dead drunk. Pain flared at Hunter. It was no new thing. He had looked after Junior before when he was drunk. He had tied him through a couple of tight spots from gambling; he had an affection for Junior. They had been pretty close these years, that is until lately. Something seemed to be coming between them, and Hunter was saddened.

"Poor brat. Well, this is the fruits of too much paternal indulgence. I'd better get him to his room and to bed."

First, however, he must safeguard the money. He put it in the new steel safe, the combination to which only Hunter knew, as the safe was recently installed and Mr. Ballard had not got around to checking on the installation. Hunter carried his powerful shoulders and carried him into the night. The party seemed to have broken. Hunter knew his

The cells were frolicking in the woods pasture. The cornlands were brown-green and the fields of color were alfalfa. The long sweep of the river, buttressed by limestone cliffs, with the sunrise sparkling on the water, was like a sequence in a technicolor production. Struckdown Ballard liked to spend his money for such effects.

"Ten of the morning," called a cheerful contralto voice from the bottom step as Hunter came around the corner of the office.

"Hello, Red," Hunter said, evading her with disapproval. Bella Ballard wore a bright peasant dress, a milkmaid's dress. He had not seen her. But for her father's registered herds he might have supposed milk cow in bottles and was plucked from trees. Her eyes shined on a working-girl's costume somehow outraged the young manager. She was just a little lovely, her hair was just a bit too kinkable. She hadn't any right to be so damned attractive. It would have been different if she still followed him around as she did as a teen-aid. Now she was grown up. She would be married at Christmas to Oliver Tiddle.

The Tiddle half-millions came out of the Ballard interests. Josiah Tiddle had put his half hundred dollars in Strick Ballard's little business. Time passed. Bittersweet Tiddle was rich too. Now young Tiddle was marrying the Ballard girl.

True, all this was poor excuse for his contrary venom. "What are you doing here? Clear out!" he told her. He supposed this was jealousy. But she got on his nerves. "Sweet-tempered, Hunter, I decided I'd take it in."

"Yeah? What happened to the party last night?" She shrugged. "Everybody seemed to go home before it broke up."

"What's that you've got?" "It's morning paper. It comes by the dawn cream truck. Since you seem to be illiterate I'd better read it to you."

"That's interesting," Hunter trusted. "Yes, it is. A bank messenger was shot last night and seventeen thousand."

Hunter grabbed the paper, read furiously, hitting the high spots. The slugged bank messenger was near death. Unconscious, and the police had been unable to question him. Identity of assassin unknown. The supposition was that a payroll or secret movement of money in currency had cleared through the First National on short notice, but bank authorities had not been contacted at the time of going to press. The job had all the earmarks of an inside stunt.

Hunter looked up. Red was watching him. He was sure he had betrayed his nervousness. He caught trying to be casual. These things happen. Breaks the monotonous of war."

"Wouldn't you say it was rather mysterious Hunter?" "Why, yes, I suppose all such things are basically mysterious."

"You know, Hunter, mysteries always charge and challenge me." "Really?" He eyed her. She clasped her knees with her clasped hands, looked dreamy. "I'd like to lay you a wager, Hunter."

"No, no," he cried. "No more betting for Hunter Dent, no, sir! You are now eating upon The Man Who Learned Life's Lessons the Hard Way."

"I'll wager you that if I had a clew I could solve this deep dark mystery."

"That's all a sleuth needs." "Go ahead."

"Did Junior come to your room last night at any time?" "Good lands!" Hunter said crossly. "Why should I always be keeping up with your brother? Your daddy had better be doing it—me, yes."

"I need a clew. You wagered. Lay your money on the barrel-head. Was Junior here?" Hunter grew bold. He was annoyed, angry, and still vaguely angry at her for looking so much like a milkmaid in a peasant dress, and so kinkable. Well, what if she was going to be married? There was nothing in the fact of the trusting little girl about her.

"This is your idea, remember, Red?" he reminded her. Her eyes were half closed and peculiar. "For a kid now, and a big hug and kiss later—I take mine on the installed plan—I'll give you the picture. I'll pose with you when your picture appears in the paper as the one who solved the crime. Take it or leave it."

"I'll take you," she held up her lips. Hunter kissed her.
